INTRODUCTION.

1902.

This volume is a collection of portraits of men prominent in business and professional life in the State of Minnesota.

Although similar works have been published generally throughout the Union, this is the first attempt at any work of this nature in Minnesota.

The primary design of the work is to present a portrait album of the leaders in the various walks of life and of their contemporaries, business associates and friends, for the use of the present generation and to preserve for future generations the features and characters of men upon whom the destiny of the State of Minnesota depends.

The work contains 2,060 engravings of men prominent in their various circles of life, including merchants, manufacturers, financiers, physicians, attorneys, clergymen, publishers, government, state, county and city officials and heads of the departments of all the various institutions and organizations throughout the State. More than 1,500 photographs have been made especially for this work, and there will be found in it portraits of more than a thousand prominent men who have been photographed for the first time in many years, especially for this work.

The scope of this volume makes it impossible to include every one of prominence, and yet in looking over the groups, it will be found that very few men who have attained prominence in any business or profession, have been omitted. No photograph has been included for the special purpose of getting patronage, but the work has been made upon honor, regardless of labor and expense.

The assistance of leaders in the various lines has materially aided in the selection of the names and in the grouping of the engravings.

The titles are brief and are condensed in every instance to a few lines below the name. Often it would be easier to write a page of ordinary biography than to attempt to indicate a man's career in two lines.

The uses to which this volume will be submitted are unlimited. It will be of constant reference value in libraries, newspaper offices, banks, mercantile houses and in the homes of the best people generally throughout the State; it will also be found of inestimable value as a means of identification to banks, and to persons throughout all American cities.

An immense amount of time, labor and money have been expended in the production of this volume. The energy, perseverance, courage and financial ability of the publishers are indicated in the fact that a large force of men have been engaged for more than eighteen months in the selection of the names, the collection of the portraits, and in the compilation of the matter, at an expenditure of many thousands of dollars, and no money has been collected in advance.

All the labor and material of which the work has been produced, are the best the market affords. The engravings are the perfection of the engraver's art; the leather with which the book is bound is the highest grade of Turkish morocco ever imported to this country; the embossing and gilded edges are pure virgin gold leaf.

Two full days' time were devoted to the preparation of each sixteen page form for the press, and, taken in its entirety, the work is a model of typographical beauty and of mental and mechanical ingenuity and perfection. It possesses great historical value, and will be appreciated by future generations fully as much as the present.

Hon. Joseph Choate, United States ambassador to Great Britain, has said of a similar work published of New York: "It is a most invaluable volume, for between its handsome covers, in compact space, are the faces of more than a thousand of my personal acquaintances, including a large number of friends and intimate associates, all classified and indexed, a desirable album, which could not otherwise be obtained at many times its cost."

Lieutenant Governor Lyndon A. Smith concerning this work has said: "Your proposition to collect and preserve the likenesses of the influential men of Minnesota is highly commendable. By so doing you will furnish, inexpensively to us and our descendants, better reminders of our contemporaries than the expensive paintings and statutes of former generations furnished of the men of those times."

Mr. Warren P. Upham, Secretary of the Minnesota State Historical Society, says: "I most heartily commend your plan to publish a book entitled 'Men of Minnesota.' It will be of great value to this society for reference by our present readers, and will be more valuable in years to come."

Mr. E. A. Young, of Finch, Young & McConville, says: "If you exercise the same care as the New York edition, you will produce a work which will increase in value as years go by. The likenesses are excellent, and the selection has been carefully made."

Mr. J. W. Cooper, of Griggs, Cooper & Co., says: "If this work, contains the photographs of our leading citizens as they are seen today, it will, indeed, be a most unique and valuable collection, and will surely be preserved in the libraries and exhibited to future generations."
